A Genealogy of

THE TRACY FAMILY-THE [illegible] FAMILY

in one volume of 247 pages, was compiled and published in 1933 by Scott Lee Boyd.

Much confusion had existed among authorities prior to this publication regarding the correct ancestry of LIEUTENANT THOMAS TRACY, as indicated by the note on page 31 of this book.

In the absence of proper proof, the compiler fell into the same error as many predecessors and followed the lineage of RICHARD TRACY of STANWAY instead of Richard's older brother, WILLIAM TRACY, who married Agnes Digby (See Note on typed page 9).

New material and proofs have been supplied by Mr.Charles F.Collisson, 72 Pennsylvania Avenue, Tuckahoe (7) New York, and in order to make corrections in the records these typed sheets have been prepared. As my records indicate a book was shipped to you, I hope these pages will be inserted (pasted in on the inner margin intact) on page 31.

An acknowledgment of receipt of these corrected sheets will be appreciated.

A Comparison of

The Short Story-Its Technique and Method

In one volume of 249 pages, was completed and published in 1924 by Harper and Bros.

Many contributions had existed among collaborative writers on this position regarding the science of writing of Elizabeth Jessica Smith, as indicated by the date on page 21 of this book.

In the absence of proper proof, the compiler feels this does serve to show preferences of following the Elizabeth of Jessica Smith of Boston Institute of Writers' Short Problem, William Smith, who carried under (see note on other page 81).

Her material was proved here based upon Dr. Osborne Professors. To Elizabeth (?) Jessica York, who is under no more connection to Dr. Osborne three types always have been prepared. To be wrote Instead a copy was obtained by you. I have been under will be inserted (pasted in or the other margin there). on page 21.

In accordance of result of those contained books will be appreciated.

PREFACE

The compiler of this work has not attempted to write a genealogy or history of the various families, but by rearranging records already in print and adding later generations to them, it has been his hope to produce a very clear and concise record of these families, for easy reference.

The data has been obtained from the following authorities, in addition to family records, of the Tracy Family:

"Tracy Lineage," by Puella F. (Hull) Mason.
"Caulkins "History of Norwich."
"Americans of Royal Descent," by Browning.
"Dictionary of Royal Lineage" by C. M. Alstrom.
"History of the English People" by J. R. Green.
"Bank's Dormant and Extinct Baronage."
"Burke's History of the Commoners."
"Burke's Families of Royal Descent."
"The Roll of Battle Abbey," by the Duchess of Cleveland.
"Hyde Genealogy."
Vicary Gibbs, "Complete Peerage."
"Lodge's Peerage."
"Burke's Peerage."
"Burke's Extinct, Forfeited and Dormant Baronetcies."
"Burke's Dormant, Forfeited, and Extinct Peerages of the British Empire."
"Ancestors of Lieutenant Thomas Tracy," by Lieutenant Charles S. Ripley, U. S. N.
Also many other publications, too numerous to mention.

The greater part of the records were obtained from the work of Lieut. Ripley and from the "Tracy Lineage" of Puella (Hull) Mason. (The compiler wishes to gratefully acknowledge the interest and assistance of Mrs. Mason in this undertaking.)

The above references show that the Tracys descended from the Vikings, Norman Dukes, Britons, West Saxons, Saxon Kings, Pepin, Charlemagne, Hugh Capet, Emperors of Russia and of Constantinople.

Records are included here of many of the intermarrying families, such as Farnham, Russell, Garrett, Lord, Winslow and Boyd Families.

Part two of the book contains the Lineage of the Winslow, Hatch,

Peirce or Pierce and Boyd Families. Much of the Winslow data has been taken from "Kenelm Winslow Memorial" by David Parsons Holton and his wife, published in two volumes.

Much of the Hatch data was taken from the "Hatch Genealogy," published by the Hatch Genealogical Society, of Salt Lake City, and who have copies of that work for distribution.

Some of the Peirce data was obtained from "The Pierce Genealogy" by Frederick Beech Pierce.

In both the Hatch and Peirce families, considerable help was given by Mr. Fayette S. Hatch, of Detroit, Mich., who has in his possession the old bible of Gurdon Perice.

In many instances various authorities have differed as to names, dates and places, and in such cases, the authority showing the greatest evidence is given here. In spite of most careful checking and rechecking, errors will no doubt be noted by family members, in which case the compiler shall be very grateful for notification.

This work has been prepared strictly for family circulation and in presenting it to them, I ask their kind indulgence, at the same time thanking most heartily each and every one who has contributed information.

THE TRACY FAMILY

THE ARMS OF TRACI, TRACYE, TRACY

(The Sudeley Arms.)

OF

Barnstaple, Devonshire, and Stanway, Gloucestershire

The field of the escutcheon is gold and divided into four parts.

The first and fourth have each in the chief point an escallop shell black, between two narrow red bands, all of which stand for TRACY —the shell denotes that an ancestor went on a pilgrimage or crusade. The second and third parts are divided by a plain green band with engrailed edge (um) and narrow black border for Hanbury.

THE CREST

On an ermine cap turned up an escallop shell, black between two wings of gold for TRACY. Out of the sable mural crown a golden demi-lion rampant holding in the paws a black battle-ax with helm of gold for Hanbury. Supporters—on either side a purple falcon with wings extended and beaks and bills of gold.

THE MOTTO

Memoria pii aeterna. (The memory of the just is eternal).

No family in England can claim armorial bearings more ancient than those of the Tracys. The heraldy of England dates from a period subsequent to the Norman Conquest, and seems to have been introduced by William I., whose arms were "Gules, two lions passant guardant, in pale, or." These same arms were used by William II., Henry I., and Stephen.

The arms of the Tracy were inherited by the brothers Ralph (Lord de Sudeley) and William (Sir William de Traci) from their Norman ancesters, in about the middle of the twelfth century.

The emblazonary cannot be definitely traced back any further than this, but it was probably derived from the shields of either the Sire de Traci or the Count de Mantes. It is recorded that "Sir William de Traci and his posterity differenced their coat armour from the elder house of Sudeley by adding an escallop shell between the two bendlets." The escallop shell, in those days when used as emblazonry, signified that the bearer, or an ancestor, who had the same arms, had been beyond the sea. This, Sir William had done, having been to Normandy.

THE TRACY FAMILY

At the beginning of the fourteenth century, during the reign of Edward II., the arms of the Tracy are referred to (VIII, Sir William Tracy, page 36) and again in the seventh year of the reign of Henry V. (XIII. William Tracy, page 37).

In the official "Visitation of the County of Gloucester, taken in the year 1623," the arms of the Tracys of Stanway were recorded as follows:

"Arms. Quarterly: 1 and 4, or an escallop in the dexter chief point Sable between two bendlets gules, TRACYE 2 and 3, argent, on a chevron sable between three pellets as many roses of the field, Baldington.

"Crest. On a chapeau gules, turned up ermine, an escallop sable, between two wings, expanded, or."

NOTE: At this time there were many persons in Gloucestershire who claimed armorial bearings, to which they were not entitled. The arms of such persons were defaced, and a list of their names may be found in the records of the "Visitation."

Thus we see, by referring to "The Tracy Lineage" page 25, that Sir William Tracy (No. 44) son of Henry Tracy (No. 43) and Alice Baldington Tracy, quartered the arms of his mother's family with those of his father's.

In this manner the arms were borne by his son Richard Tracy (No. 45) of Stanway, and by his grandson, Sir Paul Tracy, Bart. (No. 46).

The crest, as recorded during the "Visitation," is that of the Tracy family, and as the chapeau indicates, is ancient in its origin.

The arms as described are those of Tracy, and are displayed as those of an esquire, or gentleman, in accordance with the rules of heraldry.

The Tracy motto, "MEMORIA PII AETERNA" (See Fairbairn's Crests and Mottoes, Edinburgh, 1892), which means, "the memory of the pious man is eternal", is displayed below the arms, but its origin cannot be traced. No mention of it is made in the "Visitation" of 1623.

Coats of Arms May Be Divided Into Three Classes

First, those belonging to a man's European ancestors and which have been used by them for centuries. This is the most important class and in most cases the original cause of the adoption of such arms is not to be discovered, and we must trust to the strictness with which this privilege was formerly guarded for a guarantee that the arms were justly appropriated.

SECOND, embraces such arms as have been granted from the Herald's College, by royal command, as a reward for distinguished services rendered the State. These instances are comparatively rare.

THIRD, consists of coats-of-arms granted by Herald's College on payment of certain fees, and is rather a modern institution, though a few instances are recorded of a date prior to the settlement of New England. Arms of this latter class, though legal, can hardly be a source of much comfort to its possessor.

The "Arms of Tracy" are of the first mentioned class, having been inherited by the early Tracys from their Norman ancestors.

Though some abuses have crept into the system, it is a fair assertion to make that coats of arms used prior to the seventeenth century were generally the rightful property of the users.

Crests are comparatively of modern origin. In the olden times they were used only by those who had won the right of them by personal service in some crusade.

The Tracy Crest is ancient, and its form indicates that it originated in this manner. There are but few of similar kind and origin on record in England.

NOTE: Most of the above data was compiled by Lieutenant Charles S. Ripley, U.S.N.

THE TRACY FAMILY

TRACI, TRACYE, TRACY LINEAGE FROM WODEN RULER OF NORTHERN EUROPE (3rd Century) THROUGH EGBERT I., KING OF ALL ENGLAND (800) AND PRINCESS GODA (1054), TO MERCELIA LOUISE BOYD (1933)

Vikings, Britons, West Saxons and English Lines

(About 250 to 1933 A. D.)

FIRST GENERATION

1. WODEN, or ODIN
(Called by the Romans, OTHINUS), whom some antiquarians claim to have descended from the eldest son of the patriarch, Noah, made himself master of a considerable part of the north of Europe in the third century, and died in what is now Sweden.
By his wife, Frea, or Frigga, he had six sons (Speed's History of England.)
His Sons:

TENTH GENERATION

10. CERDIC
The first King of the West Saxons. Reigned 501-534. Died in 534, having ruled 33 years. (Flountius, a monk of Worcester, writing in the first quarter of the twelfth century, shows that Cerdic descended from Woden, as above.

CERDIC HAD TWO SONS:

(1.) KENRIC
His successor.

(2.) CHELWULF
Who died during the lifetime of his father, and whose great grandson, Kentwin, was the seventh King of the West Saxons.

ELEVENTH GENERATION

11. KENRIC
Reigned 534-560. Succeeded to the crown in 534, upon the death of his father. He died in 560, having reigned twenty-six years. He was succeeded by his eldest son, CHEAULIN. His second son, Cuthwulf, died in 572, leaving a son, Cearlik, who wrested the kingdom from Cheaulin, his uncle, in 592, and was the fourth King of the West Saxons.

TWELFTH GENERATION

12. CHEAULIN

Reigned 560-592. Died in exile 593. Dethroned by his nephew and banished from kingdom. Left two sons, CUTHWIN and Cuth.

THIRTEENTH GENERATION

13. CUTHWIN

Eldest son of Cheaulin, was killed in battle with the Britons in 584 during reign of his father, leaving two sons, Kenwald and CUTH.

FOURTEENTH GENERATION

14. CUTH

Died leaving a son, CHELWALD.

FIFTEENTH GENERATION

15. CHELWALD

Had a son, KENRED.

SIXTEENTH GENERATION

SECOND MARRIED EMMA (EMME) in 1002, daughter of Richard I, (the Fearless) the third Duke of Normandy, sister of Richard II, the Good, Duke of Normandy. Emma was born 984. Died 1046. (1052.) She went to England in 1001. Upon the death of her husband, Emma took her two sons, Alfred and Edward back to Normandy with her.

(For ancestors of Queen Emma see Norman Dukes page 41.)

THEIR SIX CHILDREN:

(1.) AELFRED (ALFRED)
Whose eyes were put out by order of Harold Harefoot, and who died in the monastry where he was imprisioned.

(2.) A DAUGHTER

(3.) EDWARD III, THE CONFESSOR
Reigned 1042-1066, succeeding Harthacnut.

(4.) ADELSTAN

(5.) PRINCESS GODA
(See No. 28.)

(6.) ELGIVA
Married Uchred.

In 1017, after the death of her husband, Emma married Canute (Cnut), King of England and Denmark. He reigned 1017-1035. Their one son, Harthacnut, reigned 1040-1042.

NOTE: Canute (Cnut) previously had two illegitimate sons.

(1.) SWEGEN

(2.) HAROLD I
Reigned 1035-1040.

Canute (Cnut) was the son of King Swegen Forkbeard, of Denmark, who died in 1014.

TWENTY EIGHTH GENERATION

28. THE PRINCESS GODA

Died 1054. She held lands in Gloucestershire in the reign of her brother, Edward the Confessor, which lands remained in the hands of some of her descendants as late as 1864. She was the daughter of King Ethelred II, and Queen Emma.

MARRIED DREUX, Count of Vexin (Vixin), Count of Amiens, Count of Mantes (Mande). He was called by English historians, WALTER DE MANTES. (See his ancestry below). He was the grandson of Waleran, who succeeded Hugh-the-Great, Duke of France, father of Hugh Capet, as Count of Vexin in 956, and is said to be descended from Emperor Charlemagne and Swabia, his wife.

Dreux died about July 1, 1035 in Bithynia, on a pilgrimage to Jerusalem.

(For ancestors of Princess Goda, see Norman Dukes, Page 41).

FOUR SONS:

(1.) GAUTHIER
Sometimes called Walter.

(2.) RUDOLPH (No. 29)

(3.) FOULGUES

(4.) POUTOISE

MARRIED SECOND, Eustachius II, (Eustace), Count of Boulogne.

ANCESTORS OF DREUX, COUNT OF VEXIN

WALERAN, GALERAN or GARNIER
Count of Vexin and Valois. Ruled 956-965. In 956 he received the County of Vexin through the favor of Richard, Duke of Normandy. He died 965. His wife was Hildegrade, heiress of Amiens and Crepi, or Valois.

WALTER I., (GAUTHIER)
Count of Vexin and Valois. Ruled 965-987. Married 965 to Eve, daughter of Landoi, Count of Dreux in France. He gave the village of Meicount to an abbey on condition of furnishing lights for his funeral. Their children: GAUTHIER, (Gui. of Soissons), Raul, Godefoi.

WALTER II., (GAUTHIER)

Count of Vexin and Valois. Ruled 987-1027 Avoni of St. Dennis and of St. Germain des Pres. His wife was Alix or Adile of Senlis. In return for a fine book given him by the monks, Jamiage, he exempted their boats from all toll on the Seine below Mantes-Crepi Castles. He died about 1027. Their children: DREUX, Foulques, a bss Gui a bss Raoul.

DREUX or DROGAN

Count of Vexin, called in English history, WALTER -de-MANTES. Ruled 1027-1035, County of Vexin, Amiens and part of Lentis, styled himself "Count by the will only of the King of Heaven." He became feudatory of Robert II., Duke of Normandy, with whom he made a pilgrimage to Jerusalem in which they showed more pomp than piety. They both died by poison which their enemies gave them in Bithynia in June 1035, and they were buried at Nice. His wife was GODA or GODITHA, daughter of Ethelred II., (the fourteenth king of England), and his wife, Emma, who was daughter of Richard II., Duke of Normandy. Their children: Gauthire, RAOUL (or RALPH or RUDOLPH), Foulgues, a bss Amawir, Pountois. . . NOTE: The above is copied from a copy taken by the Rev. F. P. Tracy, who visited Europe in 1846, and spent two years in antiquarian researches. Much of the Tracy Lineage in this and other books is based upon those records.

TWENTY-NINTH GENERATION

29. RUDOLF (RUDOLPH or RALPH) DE MANTES

Second son of Dreux, Count of Vexin and Mantes, by his wife, the Princess Goda, was Lord of the Manor of Sudeley and of Toddingham, which he inherited from his mother.

He was created Earl of Hereford by his uncle, Edward the Confessor, of which earldom his son was deprived in the reign of William the Conqueror. It is through him the Tracy line descends. In the year 1051 he was admiral of fifty ships of the King's navy. MARRIED Gethe, who held lands in her own right in Buckinghamshire, and who in Doomsday Book is called "Gethe, wife of Earl Rudolph." He died Dec. 21, 1057 and was buried at Petersborough. ONE SON:

HAROLD DE MANTES

NOTE: "Hereford," from Vicary Gibbs' Complete Peerage, Vol. 6, Page 446-447.

A pre-contest Earldom of Hereford has been assigned to Ralph, son of, Dreux, Count of the Vexin, by Goda, sister of Edward the Confessor, but he is first credited with an Earldom of Worchester prior to 1049.

(NOTE: Though Freeman (Norman Conquest, Vol. II, Page III) believes Ralph to have been in charge of Worcestershire in 1049, his reference (Chron. Wig., 1050) seems to show that when Ralph opposed the Danes and Welsh in that year, he gathered forces from Gloucestershire and Herefordshire.)

On the landing of Eustace, Count of Boulogne, "Earl Ralph," is stated to have been one of those who brought assistance " de suo comitatu."

(NOTE: Hoveden, Vol. I, Page 97. Count Eustace had married Goda, Ralph's mother, Simeon of Durham, (Vol. II, Page 166,) but it is not by any means clear what is intended by 'comitatu.'

When the great earldom of Swein was confiscated and broken up, Ralph is presumed to have received Herefordshire, and to have been Earl of Hereford when he opposed AElfgar's forces in 1055. According to Hoveden,, he met the enemy two miles from Hereford and shortly after the battle began, fled from the field with his French and Norman followers, leaving Hereford to be sacked and burnt.

THIRTIETH GENERATION

30. HAROLD DE MANTES

Earl of Hereford, Baron of Sudeley, Toddington and Castle Ewias (Ewyas.) Led a rebellion against William the Conqueror, his cousin, in 1068.

MARRIED Matilda (Maud), daughter of Hugh-Lupus, Earl of Chester and Ermentrude, his wife, who was a daughter of Hugh de Clermont, a Norman nobleman.

Two sons:

(1.) JOHN DE SUDELEY

(2.) Robert de Ewyas (Ewgas)

THIRTY-FIRST GENERATION

31. JOHN de MANTES, became JOHN De SUDELEY

Eldest son of Harold, inherited lands from him in Gloucestershire, and became Lord of Sudeley and Toddington.

He was leader of a rebellion against King Stephen.

Married in 1140 to Lady Grace De Traci, daughter and heiress of Henry De Traci, feudal Lord of Barnstaple in Devonshire. Her ancestor was Le Sire De Traci, who came over with William the Conqueror and fought at the Battle of Hastings.

Two sons:

(1.) Ralph

The heir of his father.

(2.) WILLIAM

The heir of his mother. Assumed her family name of De Traci, becoming, the knight of Gloucestershire, SIR WILLIAM DE TRACI.

NORMAN ANCESTRY OF LADY GRACE DE TRACI

The "Tracy" name is taken from the Castle of Traci in Normany in the arondissment of Caden on the banks of the Orne the ruins of which are yet visable.

Frugia de Traci accompanied the Conqueror in his descent on England in 1066 and fought at the battle of Hastings. His name is borne on all copies of the Roll of Battle Abbey. The settlement of the family in England does not seem to have taken place until the time of King Stephen, when Henry de Traci received the honor of the Barony of Barnstaple in Devon. He was one of King Stephen's military leaders and besieged Castle Karg in his behalf in 1153 after having defeated Robert de Moion at Dunster. He was, however, forced to raise the seige by Robert Consul, Earl of Gloucester. The race was continued in Devonshire in 1189 by Oliver de Traci, son of Henry; and in 1216 by Henry de Traci, son of Oliver; and in 1272 by Oliver de Traci, son of Henry, who dying in 1273, his estate with the Barony passed by his daughter and heiress, Eve, to Guy de Brienne."

(From an account given by Rev. F. P. Tracy).

(1.) THE SIRE De TRACI (FRUGIA or TURGIS)

Was a Norman baron, and an officer in the army with which William, Duke of Normandy, invaded England. He fought at Senlac, near Hastings, Oct. 14, 1066, according to Wace's account of the battle of Hastings. His name also appears on the existing copies of the "Roll of Battle Abbey," and the lists of Norman noblemen, who accompanied William into England. The Duchess of Cleveland, in her work entitled "The Roll of Battle Abbey," states that the name is derived from the castle and barony of Traci, near Vire, Arrondissenment of Caen.

Planche writes that "the family does not appear to have been of much importance in England before the time of King Stephen, who bestowed upon Henry de Traci, the Honour of Barnstaple in Devonshire, but the first of the name we hear of is Turgis, or Turgisius, De Traci, who with William De La Ferte, was defeated and driven out of Maine by Fulk de Rechin, Count of Anjou, in 1073, and who was therefore, in all probability, the Sire de Traci in the army of Hastings."

(2.) HENRY De TRACI

A son of the Sire De Traci, seems to have settled in the County of Devon, and was the only man of noble birth in that county who stood firm to the king during the invasion of the Empress Maud, and as he was an "excellent soldier," he rendered considerable service "in those western parts." As a recognition of his loyalty, King Stephen gave him the "Honour and Barony of Barnstaple," which formerly had been enjoyed by Iahel, the son of Alured de Torneis. He died about 1146, leaving a daughter, Grace, who inherited his possessions.

(3.) GRACE De TRACI

Daughter and heiress of Henry De Traci, Lord of Barnstaple, married about 1130, JOHN DE SUDELEY, Lord of Sudeley and Toddington, and son of Harold De Mantes, Earl of Hereford.

TWO CHILDREN:

(1.) Ralph de Sudeley

Heir and successor of his father, and founder of the Priory of Erdburie.

(2.) WILLIAM De TRACI

Who inherited from his mother, and assumed her family name.

THIRTY-SECOND GENERATION

32. SIR WILLIAM DE SUDELEY. became SIR WILLIAM DE TRACI

The second son, lived in the reign of Henry II, and held lands of his brother Ralph de Sudeley, by one knight's fee. This holding was the Manor of Toddington. In 1171, he was created "Justiciary" of Normandy. During the reign of King John he appeared in arms against his king and his lands were confiscated. They were returned to him Nov. 18, 1218 during the reign of Henry III. He died at Morthoe, County of Devon, in 1224. His wife was Hawsie De Born, and they left a son and heir and two daughters. He is buried at Morthoe.

NOTE: "Sir William de Traci and his posterity differenced their coat of armour from the elder house of Sudeley by adding an escallop shell between the two bendlets" (Herald's College.)

THIRTY-THIRD GENERATION

33. SIR HENRY DE TRACY

The eldest son and heir. He was of Toddington, County of Gloucester. He was the first to change the name from "TRACI" to "TRACY." His grandson, Sir William, omitted the "de." Some writers spell the name "Tracey," and some "Tracye." Sir Henry died about 1246, leaving a daughter and two sons:

THIRTY SECOND GENERATION

32. SIR WILLIAM DE SUDELLEY, became
SIR WILLIAM DE TRACI, by assuming his mother's family name.
He married Hawsie de Born.

The text appearing upon page 20 for this man is correct, but Generations Nos 33 to 47 are in error, as shown by later discovered information found in the two following publications:

"A New History of Gloucestershire, printed by Samuel Rudder, 1779," pages 769-772.

"Toddington, Gloucestershire" by John Britton, F.S.A. published by the author, Burton St. London, 1840.

As these two authorities agree, the following correction is made.

THIRTY THIRD GENERATION

33. OLIVER DE TRACY, son of William(32) occurs among the knights in Gloucestershire who paid scutage 2 John.

His daughter, Elizabeth married John Baynham, and Ann, who married William Nye.

(Note: There appears to be a discrepancy between Rudder's History and J. Britton's Toddington pedigrees. Rudder, pg. 771, shows that Sir William had three sons, William, Richard, Robert. Then he says: "William Tracy of Todington, son of Sir William...was father of Henry, his heir and of Richard who had the manor of Stanway settled upon him, and becomes ancestor of the baronets of that place" etc...Britton, however, shows this same Richard to have been the son of Sir William(47) instead of Sir William(48). Who can tell which is correct?)

FORTY EIGHTH GENERATION

48. WILLIAM TRACY, son of William(47) married Agnes Digby, daughter of Sir Simon Digby of Coleshill in Warwickshire. SIR WILLIAM TRACY, eldest son of Henry(46), was knighted and served as high sheriff of Gloucestershire in 1618 or 1619. He was one of the first to embrace the reformed religion in England. Married Margaret, daughter of Sir Thomas Throckmorton, of Coxe, Co. of Gloucestershire and had three sons, William, Nicholas, Richard, living 1666, and Robert, who left no issue. His daughter, Elizabeth married John Seymour, and son, who married William Wye.

(Note: There appears to be a discrepancy between Sudeley's history and T. Britton's Topographica Pedigrees. Sudeley, pg. 771, shows that Sir William had three sons, William, Richard, Robert. Then he says: "William Tracy of Todington, son of Sir William...was father of Henry, his heir and of Richard who had the manor of Stanway settled upon him, and became ancestor of the baronets of that place" etc...Britton, however, shows this same Richard to have been the son of Sir William(47) instead of Sir William(46). (See more complete record of this William(31) Tracy, following)

FIFTH SECOND GENERATION

1. LIEUTENANT WILLIAM TRACY, son of Governor William Tracy(31).

(See more complete record of this one, following)

FIFTY FIRST GENERATION, con't'd.

51. WILLIAM TRACY, Third and youngest son of John(50). Immigrant.

His older brother, Sir John 2nd. Viscount Tracy, having inherited the family lands in Gloucestershire, William was obliged, as younger son, to seek his fortune elsewhere. According to "A Cotteswold Shrine" pp. 143-44, he was living in Hayles Abbey, near Toddington the Tracy home, in 1605, which his brother the Viscount had purchased from a related neighboring family named Koby.

In the "Farrar Papers" relating to the Virginia Co. of London, now in Magdalen College Cambridge, is a letter from George Yeardley, Governor of Virginia, stating that William landed there in 1619, before the Mayflower sailing in 1620. Doubtless he was spying out the land.

Returning to England he bought the share of his cousin, Sir Wm. Throckmorton in a promotion "Berkeley Hundred," a Virginia settlement, in partnership with John Smith of Nibley (not Captain John Smith), George Thorpe and Richard Berkeley, all cousins. They planned to settle Berkeley on the St.James River, on lands that later becmae the Harrison family home, where President Wm. Henry Harrison was born.

Captain John Smith's "Generell Historie of Virginia" says that William Tracy, and others, were chosen Councilors to Governor Yeardley, the highest offices in the colony below that of Governor. William Tracy and George Thorpe were also chosen Governors of Berkeley.

Further proof that this was the William who came to Virginia, with his son Thomas Tracy(52), is in "Records of the Virginia Co" by Kingsbury, showing that William's other brother, Sir Thomas Tracy, is named as an umpire in any disputes that might arise between William Tracy and Thorpe.

The Court Book (minutes) of the Va. Co. (in Kingsbury's Records) show that William was granted an indenture for Virginia lands Feb. 2, 1619-20, the same day one was granted John Pierce for the Mayflower party. Original letters, documents, contracts and papers relating to the Berkeley project are on file in the "Smith-of-Nibley" papers, reprinted in Kingsbury's Records in the New York Public Library.

A certificate by the Mayor of Bristol shows that the ship Supply sailed from Bristol, Sept. 16, 1620 with 50 settlers, with William Tracy, Mary his wife, Joice their daughter, Thomas their "sonne," heading the list. A certificate signed by George Yeardley, Governor, headed by the same names, says they landed at Berkeley January 29 following. They were at sea

FIRST FIRST GENERATION, cont'd.

WILLIAM TREZY, Third and youngest son of John(30). Inherited.

His older brother, Sir John 2nd. Viscount Trezy, having inherited the family lands in Gloucestershire, William was obliged, as younger son, to seek his fortune elsewhere. Interesting to "A Gentleman's Lifetime" pp. 163-64, he was living in Deptford Abbey, near Tedbington the Trezy home, in 1609, which his brother the Viscount had purchased from a related Nottingham family named Hoby.

In the "Patent Rolls" relating to the Virginia Co. of London, now in Bradham College Cambridge, is a letter from George Yeardley, Governor of Virginia, stating that William landed there in 1618, before the Mayflower sailing in 1620. Unfortunately he was buried not the next.

Returning to England he bought the share of his cousin, Sir Wm. Throckmorton in a promotion "Berkeley Hundred," a Virginia settlement, in partnership with John Smith of Nibley (not Captain John Smith), George Thorpe and Richard Berkeley, all cousins. They planned to settle Berkeley on the St.Johns River, on lands that later become the Harrison family home, where president Wm. Henry Harrison was born.

Captain John Smith's "General History of Virginia" says that William Trezy, and others, were chosen Commoners to Governor Yeardley, the highest offices in the colony below that of Governor. William Trezy and George Thorpe were also chosen Overseers of Berkeley.

Further proof that this was the William who went to Virginia, with his son Thomas Trezy(2), is in "Records of the Virginia Co." by Kingsbury, showing that William's other brother, Sir Thomas Trezy, is named as an umpire in any disputes that might arise between William Trezy and Thorpe.

The Court Book (minutes) of the Va. Co. in Kingsbury's Records) show that William was granted as Ingenture for Virginia lands Feb. 2, 1619-20, the same day one was granted John Pierce for the Mayflower party. Original letters, documents, contracts and papers relating to the Berkeley project are on file in the "Smith-of-Nibley" papers, reprinted in Kingsbury's Records in the New York Public Library.

A certificate by the Mayor of Bristol shows that the ship Supply sailed from Bristol, Sept. 15, 1620 with 50 settlers, with William Trezy, Mary his wife, Jodra their daughter, Thomas their "sonne," heading the list. A certificate signed by George Yeardley, Governor, landed by the same vessel, says they landed at Berkeley January 20 following. They were at sea

FIFTY FIRST GENERATION, Con'td.

51. WILLIAM TRACY, Third and youngest son of John(50). Immigrant.

4½ months, in a little ship of 80 tons.

The Mayflower, 180 tons, 101 passengers, sailed Sept. 6, 1620, arrived at Cape Cod...not their destination...in November and landed the Pilgrims at Plymouth in December 1620, never reaching Virginia.

A third list on file carries marginal notes in Smith-of-Nibley's handwriting as follows:

"dead. 8. Apr. 1621. Willm Tracy Esq
"returned for Engl. Mary Tracy his wife
"Thomas Tracy their sonne
"Joyce Tracy their daughter...married Capt.Nath Powell, both slayne."

Tragedy stalked the Tracy family in America. Capt. Powell, Indian fighter commended in Capt. John Smith's Historie, and his wife were both slain in the 1622 Indian Massacre which wiped out Berkeley. Both their bodies were mutilated and the savages carried off Powell's head as a war trophy. William Tracy had died shortly after his arrival. Only the 12 year old boy Thomas Tracy(52) escaped into the woods and showed up in Salem in 1637. He became an important pioneer of Connecticut colony.

The investments of William(51) Tracy in Virginia proved financially disastrous. He was called upon continually for funds in promoting the colony. His letters among the Smith-of-Nibley papers show that his entire estate was consumed in this New World speculation. He became involved in debts that resulted in loss of credit and much humiliation. His sailing was delayed by his being put in prison for debt.

44 months, in a little ship of 80 tons.

The Mayflower, 180 tons, 101 passengers, sailed Sept. 6, 1620, arrived at Cape Cod...not their destination...in November and landed the Pilgrims at Plymouth in December 1620, never reaching Virginia.

A third list on file carries marginal notes in Smith-of-Shiloy's handwriting as follows:

"Sept. 6, Apr. 1621. William Tracy Jen
"released for Engl. Mary Tracy his wife
"Thomas Tracy their only
"Joyce Tracy their daughter...married Capt.Wm Tyng, both alive."

Tracys established the Tracy family in America. Capt. Powell, Indian fighter commanded in Cape. John Smith's history, and his wife were both slain in the 1622 Indian massacre which wiped out Bertuley. Both their boiles were mutilated and the savages carried off Powell's head as a war trophy. William Tracy had also shortly after arrived. Only the 11 year old boy Thomas Tracy(2d) escaped into the woods and showed up in Salem in 1627. He became an important planter of Connecticut colony.

The investments of William(3d) Tracy in Virginia proved financially disastrous. He was called upon continually for funds in promoting the colony. His letters among the Smith-Shiloy papers show that his eldest son remained in that land spending money. He became involved in debts that resulted in loss of credit and much humiliation. His selling was delayed by his being put in prison for debt.

The big romance and interest story here centers around the conflicting purposes in him by the Virginia investors in demonstrated by his appointment as Governor of Bertuley and head of the chosen band of settlers. The original document entrusted to George Thorpe, William Tracy's son-in-law, and signed by Richard Berkeley and John Smith, is preserved at the N.Y. Public Library. Also research letters in his hand writing are in the Smith-of-Shiloy papers, with the original contracts of the Berkeley partners.

His misfortunes did not shake their faith in his ability and loyalty and he still is entitled to the first investment English settlement in America, when its outlook were so dire and about to return home after years of travail, famine and want. This is shown by the agreement between Richard Berkeley, George Thorpe, William Tracy and John Smyth, in which Thorpe and Tracy are selected as governors of the Colony on August 28, 1620.

NOTE: Records of William showing "Ob.S.P." to be incorrect:

"Ob.S.P." (Obit sans prole) meaning "died without issue" appears in Britton's pedigree, but we have abundant evidence that it is not true. Among Smith-of-Nibley papers is a letter from Tracy to Smith saying that his household consists of his wife, daughter and son. Three ship's passenger lists all show the same Mary his wife, Joice their daughter, Thomas their sonne. It is this "Ob.S.P." that fooled the earlier historians of the Tracy family, and led to their recording Sir Paul as the father of Thomas, instead of William.

It is natural to presume that when Britton's Toddington book was compiled, 1830, the family had lost track of William and family, who had emigrated to America more than 200 years before, with two children, both of whom died here, and so left no death records or wills in England. William too was a third son, without inheritance, and so forced to shift for himself and die overseas. All of his descendants, through his son Thomas, were Americans, having no birth, death or inheritance records in England.

TODDINGTON. From "A New History of Gloucestershire" printed by Samuel Rudder, 1779.

"This parish lies in the lower division of Kistsgate hundred, nine miles eastward from Tewkesbury, eleven miles northwestward from Stow on the Wold, and fifteen northeast from Gloucester."

"The river Isbourne runs through it from Winchcombe, in its course to the Upper Avon, which it joins a little below the town of Evesham in Worcestershire."

"The village lies in the vale and is distinguished for its richness of soil, but more particularly for its being the residence of the Lord Viscount Tracy. His Lordship's house is large and handsome and was built about the close of the 17th century. The present noble proprietor is descended from the blood of the ancient Saxon Kings of England."

Tuesday and went. This is shown by the agreement between Richard Bartholey, George Thorpe, William Tracy and John Smith, in which Thorpe and Tracy are allotted as tenancies of the colony on August 8th, 1620.

Three ship's passenger lists also show the name "Mary his wife, Joice their daughter, Thomas their sonne. 51. WILLIAM TRACY, Third and youngest son of John(50). Immigrant.

"The estate of Toddington descended for more than 700 years in the male line of descent in uninterrupted succession of this family from King Atheldred II, son of King Edgar."

Rudder's History gives on pages 717 "Sudley" and 770 "Todington" translations of the original Latin records of the ownership of these two Tracy seats in Gloucestershire, as shown by the "Domesday Book," the great survey of England made by order of William the Conquerer in 1086 A.D. An exact facsimile of the Gloucestershire survey is on file in the New York public Library, Room 328. The translations follow:

These two manors (Sudlege and Todington) are worth and were worth 40 L." Domesday p.77.

(Note by C.F. Collisson: This shows both these Tracy manors in possession of the family prior to 1086 A.D. They continued in Tracy family ownership until 1895, or 809 years, until financial reverses made it necessary to sell them. Toddington has had several owners since, and became a teachers college before World War II, when it was occupied by United States troops, according to a letter from Captain Ninian John Hanbury-Tracy of the British Army in Calcutta, addressed to C.F. Collisson.)

FIFTY-SECOND GENERATION, Con'td.

52. LIEUTENANT THOMAS TRACY, son of William Tracy(31) Governor of Berkeley Hundred, Virginia Colony.

Born about 1610, probably in Bayles Abbey, where his father William is recorded as living in 1608, which the latter's brother, Sir John Tracy(2) had purchased from the Boby family. Died Nov. 7, 1685 and was buried in Norwich, Conn., of which city he was one of the 13 original founders. His home still stands in Norwich.

No record exists after his escape from the Indians in Berkeley, Virginia in 1622, until 1637, in which year he received a small grant of land in Salem, Mass. He appeared "on certificate from divers of Watertown," so it is evident he did not land in Salem, but came from Watertown, now a suburb of Boston.

(Record in Salem...Town Records Book 1, page 24:
"On the 23 of 11th mo. anno. 1636 THOMAS TRACY, ship carpenter applied to be received an Inhabitant."
One Page 29: "On the 2nd of first mo. 1636 THOMAS TRACY rec'd for Inhabitant upon a Certificate from Water Town and is to have five acres of land (which he may have laid out when he hath a ticket from me, (Gov. Endicott) that he hath paid me.")
There is nothing to show that he paid for or entered into possession of the land, nor any record showing that he left Salem.

In 1637 Rev. Thomas Hooker led a party into the wilds of Connecticut to found Wethersfield and Hartford. Tracy evidently went along, for he was one of the soldiers there in the Pequot War, according to the History of Weathersfield.

Thomas was also a soldier in King Phillip's War and was deputy to the General Council at Hartford 27 terms. He also lived in Saybrook and was one of the original founders of Norwich, Conn

Thomas Tracy in Norwich, was Lieutenant, commissary and quartermaster in King Phillips War. He was elected to the General Court or Legislature for more than twenty terms. His name appears frequently on the records and he was a land owner and prominent in many civic affairs.

Married three times: 1st in 1641 to Mary, widow of Edward Mason, then removed to Saybrook where all seven children were born (see following pages).

(NOTE: For a complete record of Lieutenant Thomas Tracy(52) see F.M. Caulkins' "History of Norwich, Conn.," in New York Public Library.)

[illegible] (cont'd).

2. [illegible] (d. 1617, son of William Temple) overseer of Barnsley Bundred, Wiltshire (1604).

Born about 1610, probably in Bayliss Abbey, where his father William is recorded as living in 1620, which the latter's brother, Sir John Drury(?) had purchased from the Duke family. Died Nov. 7, 1638 and was buried in Barnsley, Essex, of which city he was one of the 12 original founders. His home still stands in Barnsley.

No record exists after his escape from the Isabena in Barnsley, Virginia in 1618, until 1637, in which year he received a small grant of land in Salem, Mass. It appeared "on certificate from divers of Watertown," so it is evident he did not land in Salem, but came from Watertown, now a suburb of Boston.

(Record in Salem...Town Records Book I, page 84:
"On the 20 of 11th mo. comio. 1638 [illegible], duly approved applied to be received an inhabitant."
One page 89: "On the 2nd of 3rmt mo. 1638 Thomas Drury rec'd for inhabitant upon a certificate from Water Town and is to have five acres of land (which he may have laid out when he hath a ticket from me.(Gov. Endicott) that is both paid &c.")
There is puzzling to know what be said for or entered into possession of the land, nor any record showing that he left Salem.

In 1639 Nov. Thomas Drury led a party into the wilds of Connecticut to found Watertfield and Hartford. Treaty evidently went afoot, for he was one of the soldiers there in the Pequot war, according to the History of Connecticut.

Thomas was also a soldier in King Philip's War and was deputy to the General Council at Hartford by terms. He also lived in Saybrook and was one of the original founders of Norwich, Conn.

Thomas Drury in Wendon, was Lieutenant, commissary and Quartermaster in King Phillips War. He was elected to the General Court or Legislature for more than twenty terms. His name appears frequently on the records and he was a land owner and prominent in many civic affairs.

Married three times: 1st in 1621 to Mary, widow of Edward Eason, then removed to Saybrook where all seven children were born (see following pages).

(Notes: for a complete record of Lieutenant Thomas Drury(?) see E.B. Gerlkins' "History of Norwich, Conn.," in New York Public Library.)

NOTE: The material presented in The Tracy Family, by Scott L. Boyd, stands as correct from the FIRST GENERATION, on Page 7, to and including the THIRTY SECOND GENERATION, on Page 20.

These typed sheets make correction, beginning with the THIRTY THIRD GENERATION, on Page 20, to and including the SIXTY SECOND GENERATION, on Page 32.

From the FIFTY THIRD GENERATION on Page 33, changing Captain JOHN TRACY(48), and each succeeding generation changed to conform to the new numbering, on to the end, or to the SIXTY SECOND GENERATION, on Page 40, MERCELIA LOUISE BOYD, the material remains the same.

Five generations have been added immediately preceeding record of Lieutenant Thomas Tracy, whose number has been changed from 47 to 52. The old printed records in the book, covered the lineage of Richard of Stanway, in error, down to Lieutenant Thomas Tracy. This has been corrected by following the lineage of Richard's older brother, William, who married Agnes Digby, down to Lieutenant Thomas Tracy.

The material presented in The Tracy Family, by Scott L. Boyd, stands as correct from the FIFTY-SECOND GENERATION, on Page 7, to and including the FIFTY-SECOND GENERATION, on Page 80.

These typed sheets make correction, explaining with the FIFTY-THIRD GENERATION, on Page 80, to and including the FIFTY-SECOND GENERATION, on Page 52.

From the FIFTY-THIRD GENERATION on Page 80, changing Captain JOHN TRACY(49), and each succeeding generation changed to conform to the new numbering, on to the end, or to the FIFTY-SECOND GENERATION, on Page 40, MERCELIA LOUISA BOYD, the material remains the same.

Five generations have been added immediately preceeding record of Lieutenant Thomas Tracy, whose number has been changed from 47 to 52. The old printed records in the book, covered the lineage of Richard of Ickenay, in error, down to Lieutenant Thomas Tracy. This has been corrected by following the lineage of Richard's older brother, William, who married Agnes Digby, down to Lieutenant Thomas Tracy.

"TODDINGTON" THE TRACY FAMILY

Quoted from a letter to Charles F. Collisson from Capt. J. Henbury-Tracy (Captain Force 136) P.O. Box 102077 Calcutta, July 31, 1945.

(2.) HENRY (No. 34)

"Toddington itself has not been in the hands of the family for several years. About the turn of the century (Note by C.F.C. 1895) my grandfather, the 4th Lord Sudeley got into serious financial difficulties, and he had to sell all the estates, including Toddington, Sudeley Castle and Gregynog in Wales. It was a great tragedy for us as the family had held the land for 800 years (Note by C.F.C. from the time of Edward the Confessor, before the Norman Conquest, the Tracy's owned Toddington and Sudeley, being listed as owners in William the Conquerer's Domesday survey of 1086 AD).

"Toddington has since changed hands two or three times. Just before the war it became a teacher's college, and it will interest you to know that it was recently taken over by the U.S. Army, and troops were quartered there and in the park. There were some casualties while they were there and the coffins were temporarily placed in the family vault, while waiting shipment to the states. By now I expect they are no longer in occupation, and I do not know who is actually at Toddington.

Personally I have been a wanderer all my life, in Africa, India, Tibet and South America, but with an underlying regret that Toddington is no longer ours to return to."

Mrs. Colline Henbury-Tracy writing in 1946, from England says;

"Toddington is now owned by the National Union of Teachers and all that is left to the family is the vault in the church.

Hayles Abbey, the ruins, is now under the control of the Office of Works.

The Museum, such as it is, is only a small building at the entrance and contains nothing of interest from the family point of view."

"CONSECRATION"

Quoted from a letter to Caroline E. Dorrance from Capt. T. Dennehy-Troop (Courtesy Troop 1501 F.W. Box 1500?? Colorado, July 31, 1942.

"Dedication itself was not born in the hearts of the family for several years. About the turn of the century (more or C.T.C. 1899) by a rather it, the Ann Lord Society put into sections financial difficulties, and he had to sell all its estate, including the mansion, Blakely Castle and Shropshire in Wales. It was a great tragedy for me as the family had held the lands for 600 years (Duke of D.M.D. from the time of Edward the Confessor, before the Norman Conquest, then Percy's owned Yeadington and Blakely, being related on women, in William the Conqueror's Dormsday survey of 1086 AD).

"Yeadington has since changed hands two or three times, just before the war it became a headmaster's college, and it will interest you to know that it was recently taken over by the U.S. Army, and troops were quartered there and in the park. There were some 40 outfits while they were and the building were temporarily placed in the Evening really, while waiting eligible to the Stores. By now I expect they are no longer in occupation, and I do not know who is actually at Yeadington.

Personally I have been a wanderer all my life, in Africa, India, Tibet and South America, but with an unabating respect that Yeadington is to longer owns to return to."

Mrs. Dorline Hanbury-Tracy writing in 1944, from England says:

"Yeadington is now owned by the National Union of Teachers and all that is left to the family is the vault in the church.

Myles Adney, the ruins, is now under the control of the Office of Works.

The Manor, such as it is, is only a small building at the entrance and contains nothing of interest from the family point of view."

44. SIR WILLIAM TRACY

Of Toddington and Tewksbury Abbey (son Henry Tracy No. 43.) He was knighted by King Henry VIII in 1513, during the fifth year of his reign, and was also made the Sheriff of Gloucestershire that year. He was one of the first who embraced the reformed religion in England. His last will was dated "22 Henry VIII. (1530.)" This will was condemned and his dead body ordered raised by Parker, Chancellor of Worcester, according to the law of the church. The chancellor too officiously burned the corpse, and was afterwards fined four hundred pounds and turned out of the chancellorship. This Sir William married Margaret Throckmorton, daughter of Sir Thomas Throckmorton and Margaret Ordney, his wife, of Cross Court in Gloucestershire. This Sir Thomas was a son of Sir Thomas and Eleanor Throckmorton, who was the daughter and co-heiress of Sir Guy de la Spine, Lord of the Manor of Coughton in Warwickshire. Sir William died about 1531.

HIS FOUR CHILDREN:

(1.) WILLIAM

THE ANCESTORS AND DESCENT OF MARGARET THROCKMORTON, WHO MARRIED SIR WILLIAM TRACY (No. 44.)

THE THROCKMORTON LINE.

THROCKEMERTONIA, THROCKMORTON, or the ROCKMOOR TOWN, from which the Throckmorton family obtained its name, is situated in the vale of Evesham, in the Parish of Fladbury, anciently written Flandenburgh, County of Worcester, and was manor containing two hamlets, Hull (Hill) and Moor.

(1.) JOHN OF THROCKMORTON

Was in possession of and was the lord of said manor in 1130, and it is believed that the family possessed it before the Norman Invasion. The Etymology of the name is British or Saxon.

(2.) JOHN THROCKMORTON

His descendant, Lord of Throckmorton, in the thirteenth year of the reign of Edward III, (1339.) He married Agnes (sometimes called Anne,) daughter and heiress of Sir Richard Abberbury, of Abberbury, in the County of Oxford, and had issue.

(3.) SIR THOMAS THROCKMORTON

The eldest son, was the retinue of the Earl of Warwick, in the twentieth year of the reign of Richard II. (1396) was Eschater of Worcestershire in the third year of the reign of Henry IV., and in the sixth year of the same reign he was Constable of Elmley Castle. He married Agnes Besford, an heiress, and left a son and heir.

(4.) SIR JOHN THROCKMORTON

Was a man of some prominence during the reigns of Henry V. and Henry VI. During the latter reign he was the Under Treasurer of England. He died, leaving his wife, Eleanor, surviving. She was the daughter and co-heiress of Sir Guy de la Spine, Lord of Coughton, in Warwickshire. By this lady he had three sons and five daughters.

(5.) SIR THOMAS THROCKMORTON

His eldest son and heir, married Margaret Ordney, and had issue. One of their daughters Margaret, married Sir William Tracy (No. 44) of Toddington. (Burke's Exinct, Forfeited and Dormant Baronetcies.)

NOTE: In June 1682, Sir William Throckmorton, ninth in descent from Sir Thomas Throckmorton and his wife, Margaret Ordney, fell in a duel, and the title became extinct.

FORTY-FIFTH GENERATION

45. RICHARD TRACY, Esquire

Of Stanway and Beckford, the third son of No. 44 obtained from his father, the Manor of Stanway, in the County of Gloucester, part of the lands of the Abbey of Tewksbury, which came into the family by grant from the crown. He had B. A. from Oxford. Was reformer, author, sheriff, justice, royal commissioner and M. P. 1529-1536. He wrote several treatises in the English tongue, the most remarkable one, entitled "Preparations to the Cross." In 1550, (a few years before the beginning of Queen Mary's reign) another treatise "To Teach One to Die." In the second year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth (1560), Richard Tracy was the sheriff of Gloucestershire.

MARRIED BARBARA LUCY, a pupil of Fox, the martyrologist, and daughter of Sir Thomas Lucy, of Charlecote, in Warwickshire. (See descent of Barbara Lucy," Page 111).

NOTE: It was on the nephew of Barbara Lucy that Shakespeare took revenge by writing of him in one of his plays as "Justice Shallow, as it was before Sir Thomas Lucy that Shakespeare was arraigned for deer stealing.

Richard Tracy died in 1569.

SEVEN CHILDREN:

(1.) HESTER
MARRIED Roland Smarte.

(2.) NATHANIEL
Who was Sheriff of Gloucestershire about 1586 and who probably died sine prole previous to 1623.

(3.) SUSAN

MARRIED SECOND, Sir Henry Billingsley, Knt., and Alderman of London.

(4.) Judith
Married Francis Throgmorton.

(5.) PAUL (No. 46)
Who succeeded to the Manor of Stanway.
Was created a baronet by King James I.

(6.) Samuel
Of Clifford, Herefordshire, and who married Catherine, a daughter of Thomas Smythe of Campden.

(7.) Nehemiah

FORTY-SIXTH GENERATION

46. SIR PAUL TRACY, Bart

Eventually came into possession of the Manor of Stanway. He was created a baronet, June 29, 1611, by King James I, being the thirteenth created from the institution of the order.

Married, Anne, daughter and heiress of Raffe (Ralph) Sharkerley, of Ayno-on-the-Hill, County of Northampton.

This wife died in 1615.

Married second, Anna, daughter and heiress of Sir Ambrose Nicholas, Knt., Lord Mayor of London. This wife died in 1625. Sir Paul died in 1626, and was suceeded by his eldest son, Richard. There were no children by his second wife, but by the first one there were twenty-one.

His twenty-one children:

(1.) Richard
Born about 1587, married about 1610, Anne, daughter of Sir Thomas Coningsby of Hampton County of Hereford, and was the heir and successor of his father. His eldest son, Humphrey, was born in 1612, according to the official records of Herald's College, but the family records says "1616." He had two other sons, Richard and John. Each of his sons succeeded to the title in turn. All died sine prole.

(2.) Elizabeth
Wife of Gyles Carter of Sewell, County of Gloucester.

(3.) Hester
Wife of Francis Kerle of Much-Marcle, County of Hereford.

(4.) PAUL
Of "Pickadille Hall, nigh James Court," County of Middlesex, married, first, Margaret, daughter of Phiiip Moyse of Bansted, County of Surrey; second, Mary, daughter of George Limiter of Canterbury, in Kent.

(14.) SAUNDERS

(12.) NATHANIEL
Died in infancy.

(16.) WILLIAM
Died sine prole.

(17.) NATHANIEL (No. 2)

(18.) THOMAS (No. 47)
Born in 1610. Emigrated to America in 1636. (Town records of Salem, Mass.) See record following.

(19.) JOHN
Died sine prole.

(20.) VICESSIMUS
So named because he was the twentieth child.

(21.) ANNE
Wife of Edward Halle of Henwick, in the County of Worcester, and after his death, married William Ingraham of Erlescourt, in County of Worcester.

NOTE 1. There is no certainty that these children are given in their order of birth. Thomas, however, was the ninth son, and, in 1623, was the seventh living son.

NOTE 2. There has been a difference in opinion among the best authorities regarding the father of Lieutenant Thomas Tracy, who came to Salem, Mass. in 1636. Some claimed Nathaniel Tracy, the eldest son of Richard Tracy of Stanway, as the father. It has, however, been proven quite conclusively that SIR PAUL TRACY, the second son of Richard, was the father and that Anne Sharkerley, Sir Paul's wife, was the mother.

FORTY-SEVENTH GENERATION

47. LIEUTENANT THOMAS TRACY

(The Immigrant) was a son of Sir Paul Tracy, Bart., of Stanway, County of Gloucester, England.

He was born in 1610 on the Tewksbury estates, probably at the Manor Stanway.

He died November 7, 1685, in Norwich, Conn. Buried there.

He emigrated to America, arriving at Salem, Mass. in April 1630, where he resided until the following February, when he moved to Wethersfield, Conn.

MARRIED Mary, the widow of Edward Mason, in 1641 and then removed to Saybrook, where their children were born.

His wife died about 1659 in Saybrook.

HIS SEVEN CHILDREN:

(1.) JOHN (No. 48.)
Born 1642. Married Mary Winslow. (See record following No. 48.)

(2.) Thomas
Born 1644. Married and had a family.

(3.) Jonathan
Born 1646. Married and had a family.

(4.) Miriam
1648. Married and had a family.

(5.) Soloman
Born 1651. Married and had a family.

(6.) Daniel
Born 1652. Died Jan. 11, 1693, sine prole.

(7.) Samuel
Born 1654. Married and had a family.

Married second, about 1678, Martha Bourne, of Marshfield, Mass., and widow of John Bradford, son of Governor Bradford. No children.

Married third, 1683, Mary Foote, daughter of Nathaniel and Elizabeth (Deming) Foote of Wethersfield, and widow of John Stoddard, who died in 1664, and then of John Goodrich, who died in 1680. No children.

In 1645 he and Thomas Leffingwell, with others, relieved Uncas. the Sachem of Mohegan, with provisions, when he was besieged at Shattuck's Point by Pessachus, Sachem of the Narragansetts, which led to the subsequent grant of the town of Norwich in 1659. He and Leffingwell were given 400 acres.

He and his family moved to Norwich in 1660, of which town he was one of the proprietors.

He was a member of the Colonial Assembly at about twenty-seven sessions. In 1673 he was appointed lieutenant of the New London County Dragoons, raised to fight the Dutch and Indians. In 1678 he was appointed a justice.

In King Phillip's war in 1675, he was appointed Commissary and Quartermaster. He possessed more than 5000 acres of land.

Lieutenant Thomas Tracy was a gentleman of consequence in the community, a thorough business man, and of the very best personal character.

PERSONAL AND BUSINESS HISTORY OF LATHROP JOSIAH TRACY

(Copy of sketch printed in Bankitaly Life, March 1923.)

Lathrop Josiah Tracy, after whom our city of Tracy was named, was a direct descendant of Lieutenant Thomas Tracy, one of the original proprietors of Norwich, Conn. in 1660.

Mr. Tracy was born in Painesville, Ohio, on May 26, 1825, and in two years hence, we hope our community will celebrate in a fitting manner, the 100th anniversary of the birth of its patronymic.

Mr. Tracy, during his most active and successful career, was at one time director of the Sandusky, Mansfield & Newark Railroad, now a part of the Baltimore & Ohio system. In his capacity as a member of the governing board of the railroad company, a close friendship developed between himself and J. H. Stewart, superintendent of the road.

When Mr. Stewart moved to California and became prominently identified with construction work on the Southern Pacific Railroad, he caused two new stations to be named after his dear, old friend, one "LATHROP" and the other, "TRACY."

The origin of these two names of California communities has been more or less shrouded in mystery. Many people have supposed that Lathrop acquired its name from Mrs. Leland Stanford, whose maiden name was Lathrop. This honor, however, belongs to Mr. Tracy, a son of Ohio and a contemporary of the former President McKinley, who, like the the subject of this sketch, also led an upright life that was marked by kindness, charity and courtesy to all who came within the beneficient influence of his gentle nature.

Mr. Tracy passed away on September 24, 1897 and is survived by two sons and a daughter: Frederick K. Tracy of Scranton, Penn., Rufus A. Tracy of Mansfield, Ohio, Mrs. Mary T. Roe of Athens, Ohio.

THE TRACY FAMILY

SIX CHILDREN:

Emily Garrett, husband, Gerrit Van Frank.
(Parents of P. Riley Van Frank.)
Adeline Garrett, husband, Soloman Zelotis Lord.
Mary Ann Garrett, husband, Russell Farnham Lord.
(Parents of Anna Tracy Lord.)
James Carnahan Garrett, wife, Nellie Veghte Gambling.
Henry Dwight Garrett, unmarried.

NOTE 1. The above records vary considerably from those published in the "Tracy Lineage" by Puella (Hull) Mason. However, in a letter from Mr. Riley Van Frank to Mrs. Anna Lord Tracy dated Sept. 4, 1907 the following are his comments, and appear to be so direct and unmistakable, that his version is used.

"My son sent me notes of the Russell ancestors in America, that he obtained from a Russell descendant, and while it differs from the 'Tracy Lineage' and from the record that you gave me, it harmonizes with that of my mother (Emily (Garrett) Van Frank. daughter of Irene Russell.) given to me during her liftetime from memory.

"This lineage as I now have it, I think is correct, and I enclose it herewith. It does not seem probable that mother could be so much in error in regard to her direct ancestors, especially as after her children were grown, she visited her uncles, aunts, and other Russell relatives at Branford, Conn. and Pen Yan, N. Y., and gave the statement of relationship after these visits."

NOTE 2. The surname Russell is undoubtedly derived from le Russe, which latter is only one form of the endless corruptions of le Rouse, a sobriquet given on account of a light or red complexion and very familiar to all who have spent any time over medieval registers, as Peter le Russe, Martin le Ruse, William le Rus, Willecocus Russel. These names all appear on the "Hundred Rolls."

THE GARRETT FAMILY

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN AND HANNAH (BARKER) GARRETT OF LONDON, ENGLAND. ANCESTORS OF MARY ANN GARRETT, WHO MARRIED RUSSEL FARNHAM LORD.

(Great-great-grandparents of Mercelia Louise Boyd.)

JOHN GARRETT (The Immigrant)

Lived there until 1800, when he settled in Trenton, N. Y.

She was born Nov. 8 (or 18), 1735 in Branford, Conn.

She died in Trenton, N. Y.

She was related to the Maltbys and Russells of New Haven, Conn.

The Maltbys came from Maltby, Yorkshire, England, which was in possession of the family over 800 years.

This John Garrett was left an orphan at the age of nine years and he was adopted by his uncle, Peter Garrett, who was a sea captain, and on his uncle's ship he followed the sea until he was of age, when he settled in New Haven, Conn.

He was in the War of the Revolution. He had two half brothers, by his father's second marriage. They came to America in 1790, one settling near where Cleveland now stands and the other. (Peter), where Cincinnati now stands.

THE DESCENT OF BARBARA LUCY (1500), WIFE OF RICHARD TRACY (No. 45) OF STANWAY.

From Pepin of Heristal (714), through Charlemagne (814), Hugh-the-Great (956), William the Conqueror (1053) and his daughter, PRINCESS GUNDRED (1070). Also through Kenneth 11 (843) King of Scotland, Romanus 11 (959), Emperor of the East, Otho I, The Great (973), Emperor of Germany, and Sir Thomas Lucy, father of BARBARA LUCY.

THE CARLOVINGIAN LINE. (French).

1. PEPIN OF HERISTAL
   Also called PEPIN LE GROS. Mayor of the Palace. Died 714. He was the stock of the Carlovingian line of French Kings.
2. CHARLES MARTEL (Charles the Hammer)
   The natural son of Pepin of Heristal, like his father, did not take the title of "King," but that of "Mayor of the Palace."
   He resisted and checked the progress of the Saracens.
   He died 741. From 737 to 741 there was no king.
   TWO SONS:

   PEPIN LE BREF (The Short)
   Who succeeded him.

   CARLOMAN
   Who retired to a monastary.
3. PEPIN LE BREF (The Short)
   Reigned 741-768. His name came from his short stature and he was the first King of France of the Carlovingian dynasty.
   He had himself and his queen, Bertha, crowned by the Pope in the church of St. Denis, after the foolish prince, Childeric, of the Merovingian Line (surnamed the "Idiot"), whom he had placed on the throne, had been dethroned. Childeric III, after ten years, was placed in a monastary in 750.
   Pepin was victorious in his wars with the Saracens, united Aquitaine to his kingdom, and waged successful war against the German princes.

He died September 18, 768, leaving a united empire to his son:

4. CHARLEMAGNE

Reigned 768-814. Born 742. Died Jan. 28, 814 at Aix-la-Chapelle. His empire embraced all of France, a part of Spain, more than half of Italy, and nearly all of Germany. In 770 he subdued the revolt in Aquitaine.

In 772 he started a conflict against the Saxons, which he maintained for more than thirty years.

In 773 he crossed the Alps, and was crowned King of Lombardy.

In 778 he carried his arms into Spain. On Dec. 25, 800, Pope Leo crowned him, Charles Augustus, Emperor of the Romans and of the West.

MARRIED Desiree, daughter of Didler, King of the Lombards.

MARRIED SECOND, Suabian Hildegarde, daughter of Childebrand, Duke of Suabia.

THE ASTLEYS OF ASTLEY. (English)

THE ANCESTORS OF LADY JOANE, WIFE OF REGINALD, LORD GREY DE RUTHYN, AND DAUGHTER OF WILLIAM DE ASTLEY.

This noble family derived its surname from the Manor of Astley, formerly written Estley, in the County of Warwick, which, with other estates in that shire, belonged to the Astleys at the beginning of the reign of King Henry I.

PHILIP DE ASTLEY

Grandson of the first possessor, was, upon the assessment of the aid towards the marriage of the daughter of Henry II, certified to hold three knights' fees of William, Earl of Warwick, "by the service of laying hands on the earl's stirrop when he did get upon or alight from horseback.

THOMAS DE ASTLEY

Of Astley, son of Philip, held certain lands of the "Honour of Leicester" and became a kind of bailiff to Simon de Montfort, Earl of Leicester.

In 1210 this Thomas paid a hundred marks to the crown, "to be excused from going beyond the sea," . . . it is supposed in a military expedition into Ireland. A few years later he took up arms against the king. In 1215 he was made a prisoner in Bedford Castle and his estates were confiscated by the crown. When Henry III came to the throne his territorial possessions were restored to him in 1216, and he returned to his allegiance to the king.

MARRIED Maud, one of the sisters and co-heirs of Roger de Camvill of Creeke, in County of Northampton.

WALTER DE ASTLEY

Of Astley, son of Thomas, participated, with his father, in the rebellion of the barons against King John. He died before 1240.

SIR THOMAS DE ASTLEY, Knt.

Son of Walter, was for many years a loyal and faithful subject of King Henry III, and from 1241 to 1250 had various appointments under the crown. In 1262, he was one of the leaders of the rebellious barons, and the following year when the king submitted to the "Provisions of Oxford," he was nominated "Custos Pacis" for Leicestershire.

In 1264 the battle of Evesham was fought between the king and the barons. Montfort, Earl of Leicester and Sir Thomas de Astley, among other insurgent nobles, were slain.

His estates were then confiscated by the crown and conferred upon Warine de Bessingbourne.

MARRIED Joane, daughter of Ernald de Bois, a person of great consequence in the county of Leicester.

MARRIED SECOND, Edith, daughter of Peter Constable, of Melton Constable, in the County of Norfolk, and sister of Sir Ralph Constable, Knt.

THOMAS DE ASTLEY

His eldest son by the first marriage, was eventually put into possession of his father's estates by virtue of a decree called "Dictum de Kenilworth," paying as a compensation to Warine de Bessingbourne 320 marks sterling, to raise which sum, he sold his manor of Little Copston to the monks of Combe.

He engaged in the Scottish war of King Edward I. and was rewarded by being summoned to Parliament as Baron Astley from June 23, 1295, to November 3, 1306. At his decease he was succeeded by his eldest son, Nicholas.

SIR GUY DE ASTLEY

The second son, in company with his elder brother, Nicholas, the second Lord Astley, was in the Army in Scotland with King Edward II, and both were taken prisoners at Bannocksburn.

The date of the death of Nicholas (Lord Astley) is not known, but having outlived his brother Sir Guy, and dying issueless, the title and estates devolved upon his nephew, Thomas, the son and heir of Sir Guy by his wife Alice, second daughter and co-heiress of Sir Thomas Wolvey, Knt.

THOMAS DE ASTLEY

Third Lord Astley, was summoned to Parliament from February 25, 1342 to March 10, 1349. In 1339 he founded a chantry in the parish church of Astley. Afterwards he erected a beautiful collegiate church.

MARRIED Elizabeth, daughter of Guy de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, and had issue.

(For her record, see Page 138).

WILLIAM DE ASLEY

His eldest son, was the fourth Lord Astley, but was never summoned to Parliament.

MARRIED Catherine, daughter of William, Lord Willoughby de Eresny, by whom he left an only daughter, JOANE.

LADY JOANE DE ASLEY

MARRIED Thomas Raleigh of Farnborough, in the County of Warwick, by whom she had no issue.

MARRIED SECOND, REGINALD, LORD GREY DE RUTHYN (No. 27) by whom she had three sons and a daughter.

THE LUCY LINE. (English)

28. LADY ELEANOR DE GREY

The daughter of Reginald De Grey and Lady Joane de Grey,

MARRIED William Lucy of Charlecote, in the County of Warwick.

(For his record, see Page 142).

This was the William Lucy who, during his minority, was in ward to John Boteler of Warrington, and who, upon the decease of Lady Clinton, 1423, was found to be her cousin and next heir.

In the war of the Roses, William Lucy arrayed himself under the banner of the House of York. He died in 1466, and was succeeded by his son.

29. SIR WILLIAM LUCY

Of Charlecote, created a Knight of the Bath at the coronation of the queen of Henry VII.

MARRIED Margaret, daughter of John Brecknock, treasurer to King Henry VI.

MARRIED SECOND, Alice, daughter of William Hanbury.

He died in 1492.

30. EDWARD LUCY

Of Charlecote, his son by first wife, born in 1464, was a soldier of high repute in the reign of Henry VII. He was in command of a division of the royal army at the battle of Stoke and afterwards served the king in the French Wars.

MARRIED Elizabeth, daughter and heiress of Walter Tramsington, by whom he had no issue.

MARRIED SECOND, Jane, daughter of Richard Ludlow, and was succeeded at his decease, by his eldest son. (The probate of his last will and testament being May 19, 1498).

SIR THOMAS DE ASTLEY, Knt.

31. SIR THOMAS LUCY, Knt.

Of Charlecote, one of the servers to King Henry VIII.

MARRIED Elizabeth, widow of George Catesby of Ashby-Legers, in the county of Northampton, and daughter of Sir Richard Empson, Knt., by whom he had the following,

SIX CHILDREN:

(1.) WILLIAM
His heir and successor.

(2.) THOMAS
Upon whom his father settled the manor of Cleybrooke, in Leicestershire.

(3.) EDMUND

(For their records, see Page 28.)

NOTE: During the first year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, Sir Thomas Lucy, son of Sir William and nephew of Barbara, rebuilt the manor house at Charlecote, as it now stands.
It was this Sir Thomas Lucy who prosecuted Shakespeare for stealing deer from Fulbroke Park. The prosecution was conducted with much bitterness, in consequence of a lampoon which the poet had written on Sir Thomas. As a result, Shakespeare was compelled to fly from his native place in order to escape the consequences. The great dramatist, however, revenged himself by subsequently delineating Sir Thomas under the character of "Justice Shallows."

3. WILLIAM DE BEAUCHAMP
   This nobleman having aided the Empress Maud in her endeavors to gain the English throne, was deprived of all his honors and dispossessed of his estates by King Stephen. But, when Henry II (son of the Empress Maud) succeeded to the throne (1153), not only were all his previous honors and estates restored to him, but besides the sheriffalty of Worcestershire, which he enjoyed by inheritance, he was made Sheriff of Gloucestershire, and Sheriff of Herefordshire.
   Upon the levy of the assessment towards the marriage portion of one of King Henry's daughters, this feudal lord certified his knight's fee to amount to fifteen.
   MARRIED Maud, daughter of William, Lord Braose of Gower.
   He was succeeded at his death by his son:

4. WILLIAM DE BEAUCHAMP
   MARRIED Joane, a daughter of Sir Thomas Walerie.

Died before 1211. One son:

5. WALTER DE BEAUCHAMP

A minor, whose wardship and marriage Roger de Mortimer and Isabel, his wife, obtained for 3000 marks.

This feudal lord was appointed governor of Hanley Castle, in the County of Worcester in 1215.

Was entrusted with the custody of the same shire in that turbulent year. But proving faithless to the king and joining the insurrectionary barons, all his lands were seized by the crown, and himself excommunicated, a course of proceeding which extorted immediate submission, for we find him very soon afterwards making his peace with the king, and soliciting absolution from Gualo, the legate. This he seems to have obtained, for, upon giving security to Henry III, who had just then succeeded to the throne (1216), he had restitution of his castle at Worcester, with his hereditary sheriffalty.

MARRIED Bertha, daughter of William, Lord Braose.

He died in 1235 and was succeeded by his elder son.

TWO SONS:

(1.) WALCHELINE DE BEAUCHAMP

(2.) JAMES DE BEAUCHAMP

6. WALCHELINE DE BEAUCHAMP

MARRIED Joane, daughter of Roger, Lord Mortimer.

Died the same year as his father (1235).

Was succeeded by an only son:

7. WILLIAM DE BEAUCHAMP

Feudal Lord of Elmley.

He rendered efficient military service to the crown during time of Henry III.

In 1252 he was with the king in Gascogne.

In 1254 he marched against the Scots under the banner of Earl of Gloucester. Later he helped oppose the incursions of Leweline, Prince of Wales.

MARRIED Isabel, daughter of William Maudit, of Hanslape, in the County of Berks, and sister and heiress of William Mauduit, Earl of Warwick.

Died in 1268, and was succeeded by his eldest son:

8. WILLIAM DE BEAUCHAMP

This nobleman inherited from his father the feudal barony of Elmley, and from his mother the Earldom of Warwick (originally possessed by the Newburgs) and the barony of Hanslape (which had belonged to the Mauduits).

In the Welsh and Scottish wars, waged during the reign of Edward I, he rendered most efficient service to the king and distinguished himself as a military leader.

MARRIED Maud, widow of Girard de Furnival, and one of the four daughters and co-heiresses of Richard Fitz-John, son of John Fitz-Geffery, Chief Justice of Ireland, by whom he had issue.

He was succeeded by his eldest son:

9. GUY DE BEAUCHAMP

Second Earl of Warwick, so called in memory of his celebrated predecessor 'The Saxon Guy.'

For the distinguished part which he took at the battle of Falkirk, he was rewarded with extensive grants of land in Scotland.

In 1310 he was a member of the commission appointed by Parliament to draw up regulations for "the well governing of the kingdom and the king's household," and in consequent of the corrupt influence exercised at that period in the affairs of the realm by Piers Gaveston, through the unbounded partiality of the king. Upon the surrender of Scarborough Castle, in 1312, Gaveston fell into the hands of his enemies, and after a summary trial, the Earl caused him to be beheaded at Blacklow Hill, near Warwick. For this atrocious proceeding, the Earl and all others concerned were eventually pardoned by the king.

MARRIED Alice, widow of Thomas de Laybourne, and a daughter of Ralph de Toni of Flamsted, in the County of Hertford, and by her had issue.

Died at Warwick Castle August 12, 1315. It is supposed that he was poisoned by the partisans of Gaveston.

SEVEN CHILDREN:

(1.) THOMAS DE BEAUCHAMP
Heir and successor.

(2.) JOHN DE BEAUCHAMP
Captain of Calais, Admiral of the Fleet, Standard Bearer at Cressy, and one of the original Knights of the Garter.
He was also summoned to Parliament as a baron.

(3.) MAUD DE BEAUCHAMP
MARRIED Geoffrey, Lord Say.

(4.) EMMA DE BEAUCHAMP
MARRIED Rowland Odingsels.

(5.) ISABEL DE BEAUCHAMP
Wife of John Clinton.

(6.) ELIZABETH DE BEAUCHAMP
MARRIED Thomas, Lord Astley.
(For her record, see Page 132)

(7.) LUCIA DE BEAUCHAMP
MARRIED Robert de Napton.

ANCESTORS OF WILLIAM LUCY, OF CHARLECOTE, WHO MARRIED LADY ELEANOR, DAUGHTER OF REGINALD, LORD GREY DE RUTHYN

(For her record, see No. 28, on Page 132).

THE DE MONTFORTS AND THE LUCYS OF CHARLECOTE, WARWICKSHIRE.

(English)

1. THURSTANE DE BASTENBURGH
His son:

2. HUGH DE MONTFORT
(Known as Hugh with a Beard).
He accompanied William of Normandy into England, and not only at the battle of Hastings, but throughout the invasion and conquest which followed, rendered most eminent military service. For this service he seems to have been amply rewarded, for, at the time of the "general survey," he was possessed of twenty-eight Lordships in Kent, with a large portion of Romney Marsh, sixteen in Essex, fifty-one in Suffolk, and nineteen in Norfolk.

This gallant soldier eventually lost his life in a duel with Walcheline de Ferrers, and was succeeded by

His son:

3. HUGH DE MONTFORT

Had three children: (First two by first wife).

(1.) Robert de Montfort

Commander of the Army of William Rufus. Died sine prole.

(2.) Hugh de Montfort

Died sine prole, while on a Crusade.

(3.) ALICE DE MONTFORT

(By second wife).

4. ALICE DE MONTFORT

Married Gilbert de Gaunt, a grandson of Baldwin V, of Flanders.

His son:

5. HUGH DE MONTFORT

(Called "Hugh the Fourth"), who having assumed the surname of his mother's family, inherited all the possessions of his grandfather.

Married Adeline, a daughter of Robert, Earl of Millent.

He joined with Waleran, her brother, and all those who endeavored to advance the cause of William, son of Robert-Curthose, against King Henry I, in 1124.

While in Normandy for this purpose, he and said Waleran were made prisoners and confined as such for fourteen years.

The time of his death is unknown.

Four children:

(1.) Robert de Montfort

Fought and vanquished Henry de Essex, the king's standard bearer, having first charged him with cowardice, in fleeing from his colors (1163).

He does not appear to have had any issue, for he was succeeded at his decease by his brother.

(2.) THURSTANE DE MONTFORT

He succeeded his brother.

(3.) Adeline de Montfort
Married William de Britolio.

(4.) A daughter
Married to Richard, son of the Earl of Gloucester.

6. THURSTANE DE MONTFORT

Who succeeded his brother, Robert, and "was enfeoffed of several lordships by Henry de Newburgh, the first Earl of Warwick." At the chief seat of his family in Warwickshire he erected a castle of great strength, which he called "Beldesert." He was succeeded by his eldest son.

Two children:

(1.) Henry de Montfort
Eldest son and successor.

(2.) THURSTANE DE CHARLECOTE

7. THURSTANE DE CHARLECOTE

A younger son of Thurstane de Montfort, of Beldesert, in the County of Warwick.

Lived in the time of Richard I. His son:

8. SIR WALTER DE CHARLECOTE

Upon him Henry de Montfort conferred the village of Charlecote. Richard I confirmed the grant, and added many immunities and privileges, all of which were ratified by King John in the fifth year of that monarch's reign (1203). His son:

9. SIR WILLIAM DE LUCY

(Changed from the Charlecote).

The first of the Charlecotes who bore that surname.

Sir William Dugdale surmises that he took the surname of De Lucy, because his mother might have been the heir of some branch of the great baronical family of that name, which had derived its dsignation from a place in Normandy.

Of this house was Henry de Lucy, so distinguished during the conflict between King Stephen and the Empress Maud, and who afterwards, during the reign of Henry II, was Justiciary of England, and who, at one time, during the temporary absence of the king beyond the sea, was lieutenant of the kingdom.

During the reign of King John, Sir William de Lucy took up arms with the barons against the king, and in consequence, his estates were seized by the crown. Eventually he returned to his allegiance, and, in the first year of the reign of Henry III (1216), a full restoration of all his possessions was made to him.

In the twentieth year of the reign of the same monarch (1235), Sir William was placed in possession of the Castle of Kenilworth, and was given the custody of the counties of Warwick and Leicester.

MARRIED Isabel, a daughter of Absalon de Aldermonstone.

MARRIED SECOND, Maud, sister and one of the co-heirs of John Cotele.

He founded the monastery of Thelesford. Died about 1247.

Was succeeded by a son of his first wife:

10. SIR WILLIAM DE LUCY

Knight of Charlecote.

MARRIED Amicia, daughter and heiress of William de Furchea, and heiress also of William Fitz-Warine. His son:

11. FOUK DE LUCY

Was in the immediate retinue of the celebrated Peter de Montfort, and who, after the battle of Lewes, (reign of Henry III) was constituted one of the nine governors of the kingdom. Died in 1302.

Was succeeded by his son:

12. SIR WILLIAM LUCY

Of Charlecote, a person of celebrity in his generation.

He was a representative in several Parliaments for the County of Warwick. Was succeeded by his son:

13. SIR WILLIAM LUCY

Of Charlecote.

In 1345 he was engaged in raising ind equipping one hundred and sixty archers from Warwickshire for the king's service.

Died in 1348. Was succeeded by his son:

14. THOMAS LUCY

Of Charlecote. Was succeeded by his son:

15. SIR WILLIAM LUCY

Of Charlecote, "who being a knight, was retained in the fifth year of the reign of Richard II (1381), to serve John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster and King of Castile, for life, with one esquire, in times of war and peace."

In the first year of the reign of Henry IV (1399) he represented the County of Warwick in Parliament.

16. SIR THOMAS LUCY

Of Charlecote.

His son and successor was also in the retinue of John of Gaunt.

In 1405 he was a member of Parliament for Warwickshire.

In the following year he was Sheriff of the Counties of Warwick and Leicester.

MARRIED Alice, daughter and eventually heiress of Sir William Hugford, and acquired through that lady estates in the Counties of Bedford and Salop. Died July 28, 1415. His son.

17. WILLIAM LUCY

Of Charlecote.

MARRIED Lady Eleanor de Grey, daughter of Reginald, Lord Grey de Ruthyn.

WYNCELOWE - WINSLOW

The motto: "Decoptus Florio," found on some ancient Coats of Arms, has in modern times been written "Decaptus Floreo," and with some, the old form gives way to "Decarptus Floreo" . . . all having as a central idea . . . "Truth crushed to earth shall rise again."

PART TWO

THE WINSLOW FAMILY

The earlier records given here are taken from "KENELM WINSLOW MEMORIAL," a book in two volumes by David-Parsons Holton and his wife Mrs. Frances K. Forward Holton, published as follows: Vol. I in 1877 in New York by D.-P. Holton, M.D. Publisher. Vol. 2 in 1888 in New York by Mrs. Frances K. Holton, Publisher.

The family of Winslows existed in England long previous to the first record here listed. It is believed this English family was entirely distinct from the Winslows of Denmark, the first ancestor of the latter which has been found, being Rev. Peder-Jacobsen Winslow, father of Prof. Jacob-Benignus Winslow, who was born April 2, 1669, which was later than the Pilgrim Winslows. However there was a parish in Scania named Winslof, or Winslow, at an early date, which may have originated with a more ancient family, from whom it is possible that the English and American Winslows are descended.

About the first records we have of the English Winslows are in connection with the family of Crouchmans, whose residence was called "CROUCHMAN'S HALL," but when it came into possesion of the Winslows by marriage it was styled "WYNCELOWE'S HALL" and the ancient arms of that family are sculptured in stone in various parts of the old hall and also the manor.

This John Wyncelowe who married the heiress, Mary or Mariota Crouchman, was of great repute in the City of London about 1350, but it is not determined from what part of England his family came, though the name is frequently mentioned in the early history of London.

WYNCELOWE, WINSELOWE, WINSLOWE, WINSLOW
LINEAGE FROM WILLIAM WINCELOWE (1300) THROUGH KENELM WINSLOW (1599) TO MERCELIA LOUISE BOYD (1933)

FIRST GENERATION

1. WILLIAM WYNCELOWE

Born about 1300.

Two sons:

(1.) John Wyncelowe, Esquire
Of London, afterwards of "Wyncelowe Hall."
He was of great repute in London about 1350, and was living 1387-1388.
Married Mary (Mariota) Crouchman.
(See her ancestry below).

(2.) WILLIAM WYNCELOWE
(See second generation below).

ANCESTORS OF MARY (MARIOTA) CROUCHMAN.

WILLIAM CROUCHMAN

Of County Essex about 1357.

Married Egidia Greig, daughter and heiress of John Greig, Esquire, of "Hempstead Hall," in County Essex.

Two sons:

(1.) John Crouchman
Of "Hempstead Hall," about 1360-70.

(2.) WILLIAM CROUCHMAN

WILLIAM CROUCHMAN

Heir to his brother, John, of "Hempstead Hall," in County Essex.
Died about 1391.

One daughter:

MARY (MARIOTA) CROUCHMAN

MARY (MARIOTA) CROUCHMAN

Heiress to her father. She was styled "of Crouchman's Hall."
Died 1409-10.

MARRIED John Wyncelowe, Esquire, of London (of great repute there about 1350). After this marriage, "Crouchman's Hall" became "Wyncelowe Hall."
He was living in 1387-88.
ONE SON:

WILLIAM WYNCELOWE
MARRIED Agnes Poore.

MARRIED SECOND, Thomas Holgilt, Esquire. No record of any children.

WILLIAM WINCELOWE, Esquire
Of "Wincelowe Hall."
Born 1389-90. Died 1426-27.
MARRIED Agnes Poore, sister and heiress of Sir Thomas Poore, of County Oxford. She was born 1379. Died 1443.
ONE DAUGHTER:

JANE (JOANE) WYNCELOWE
Who died unmarried, in 1431.

SECOND GENERATION

2. WILLIAM WYNCELOWE
SECOND SON of No. 1 Born about 1340.
ONE SON:

THOMAS WYNCELOWE (No. 3)

THIRD GENERATION

3. THOMAS WINSELOWE, Esquire
Of Burton in County of Oxford. Held lands, also, in Essex.
Born about 1380. Was living in 1443 and in 1452.
MARRIED Cecelia Tansley (Lady Agnes). She was one of the two daughters and heiresses of an old family of "Tansleys."
ONE SON:

WILLIAM WINSLOWE (No. 4)

FOURTH GENERATION

4. WILLIAM WINSLOWE
Born about 1435-40.
TWO SONS:

(1.) KENELM WINSLOW (No. 5)

(2.) Richard Winslow

Born July 17, 155-. Had a grant from King Edward VI, of the Rectory of Elksley, in County of Nottingham.

NOTE: David Parsons Holton in his "Kenelm Winslow Memorial," states he has been unable to prove up on the foregoing records, but without further research, he has assumed that they are approximately correct. From this point on, Dr. Holton seems quite sure of his records. Note the continual change in the spelling of the name.

FIFTH GENERATION

5. KENELM WINSLOW

Of Kempsey, England.

Died 1607 in the parish of St. Andrew, County Worcester, England.

In 1559, he purchased of Sir Richard Newport, an estate called "Newport's Place," in Kempsey, County Worcester. He had an older and very considerable estate in the same parish called "Clerkenleap." It was sold by his grandson, Richard Winslow, in 1650.

Married Catherine (Katherine).

One son:

EDWARD WINSLOW (No. 6)

He is the only child of whom we have knowledge, though his will indicates there were other children besides Edward.

NOTE: It is interesting to note the carelessness about the spelling in those times, even ones own name, as the following examples indicate.

In the will of Kenelm Winslow (No. 5), father of this Edward, in the body of his will he wrote his name "Kenelme Wynslowe," and his signature at end is "Kenelm Wynslo." The Parish Clerk at

St. Peters, Droitwich, writes the name "Kenelme Wynsloe," sonne of "Edward Wynslowe."

SIXTH GENERATION

6. EDWARD WINSLOW

Of Kempsey and Droitwich, County Worcester, England.
Born Oct. 7 (or 17) 1560 at the parish of St. Andrews, County Worcester, England.
Died before 1631.
MARRIED (supposedly) Eleanor Pelham, of Droitwich, England, daughter of Sir Herbert Pelham of that place.
ONE SON of Edward and Eleanor (Pelham) Winslow:

RICHARD WINSLOW
Of Draycoat, Parish of Kempsey, England.
Born about 1585. Died May 20, 1659.
MARRIED about 1605, Alice (Hay) Hurdman, daughter of Edward Hurdman. (Her first husband was Mr. Hay, Esquire, and they had one son, James Hay, who was living in 1659).
In 1669, she left a donation to the poor of Kempsey.
FOUR CHILDREN of Richard and Alice Hay Winslow:

(1.) RICHARD WINSLOW
(2.) JOHN WINSLOW
(3.) ELYNOR (ELEANOR) WINSLOW
(4.) ELIZABETH WINSLOW

(For their records, see Page 167)

MARRIED SECOND, Nov. 4, 1594, Magdalene Ollyver, in St. Brides Church, London.
EIGHT CHILDREN of Edward and Magdalene (Ollyver) Winslow: (All born in Droitwich, England.)

(1.) EDWARD WINSLOW
(2.) JOHN WINSLOW
(3.) ELEANOR WINSLOW
(4.) KENELM WINSLOW (No. 7)
(5.) GILBERT WINSLOW
(6.) ELIZABETH WINSLOW

(7.) MAGDALENE WINSLOW
(8.) JOSIAH WINSLOW

(For their records, see Pages, 168 to 170).

NOTE: As this is the chapter pertaining to the EDWARD WINSLOW Family, whose sons, Gov. Edward Winslow, John Winslow, Kenelm Winslow, Gilbert Winslow and Josiah Winslow, all came to Plymouth, it might be of interest to include a short sketch of what is known of this common ancestor, Edward Winslow, and his family as they lived in England, as gathered from "The Winslow Memorial" by David-Parsons Holton.

"On the east bank of the Severn stands the ancient city of Worcester, a little west of the geographical center of the United Kingdom of England and Wales.

The river here receives from the north-east the Birmingham and Worcester canal. It flows to the south, and four miles below, has on its eastern bank, the parish of Kempsey with its hamlet of Draycot, south of the Parish Church.

Here lived in 1400 and in 1420, John Winslow, possibly the ancestors of the Winslows of America, who married Agnes Throckmorton, fourth daughter of John Throckmorton, Esq., of Coughton, Warwickshire

But what and where is Droitwich? "Droit" means "right," "wych" means "salt spring." It may then mean a well that is owned in shares, or it may imply that the manufacture of salt from it is lawful or right.

If we follow up the Severn a few miles from where the Birmingham and Worcester canal enters it at Worcester, we strike the mouth of the Salwarp river. The canal for most of its length hugs the southern or left bank of the river.

As we follow them up, we come in less than three miles to the village of Salwarp, the birth place of Robert Beauchamp, who in 1381 was the great Earl of Warwick. A little north of this is the beautiful Westwood Park with its ample lakelet.

About a mile on is Droitwich, seven miles from Worcester, nineteen from Birmingham, and one hundred and eighteen from London.

The tower of St. Andrews Church, is said to have been built in 1320. St. Peters parochial Church, which was built about 1500, stands on the principal street, and anciently there was a chapel dependent upon it. There was a cart way between the congregation and the pulpit and reading desk.

The builder, John Abingdon, exhausted his ingenuity in building hiding holes with secret stairs, trap-doors and sliding panels.

The salt springs at Droitwich have been known from time immemorial. From the earliest ages, salt (sal) has been warped down to the Severn by the little river Salwarp. Here is probably the "Salinae" of the Romans.

The monopoly of the brine was sold by King John for one hundred pounds per annum to certain individuals, many of them residing at some distance. Possibly Edward Winslow, the father of the five Winslows who came to Plymouth, was one of these, before his removal to Droitwich.

The droit in the time of Henry VIII, a century earlier, amounted to twenty pounds per annum, a very considerable sum in those days, and just before the American Revolution the duties rose to eighty thousand pounds. An attempt to raise more from it ruined this convenient source of revenue. Subsequently a great change took place which increased its business manifold.

A man named Mr. Steynor, who had a beautiful place and considerable property in the western border of the village, satisfied himself that all persons had a constitutional right to bore for salt on their own land. He tried it, fought the crown and the monopolists till, in 1689, he gained a complete victory and spent his last penny.

Any one who can buy a lot and build a furnace may now freely buy coal and sell salt.

The structure of the land is as follows: four feet mold, thirty-two marl, forty gypsum, then a river twenty-two inches in depth, of brine, by far the strongest in England, that rises to the surface without pumping. Below this are seventy-five feet of gypsum, and the solid salt to an unknown depth.

Salwarp Canal is covered with boats of salt and coal. The annual product, limited only by demand, is more than 30,000 tons.
A grateful posterity remember the Mr. Stynor, who died a pauper, and the records show that his daughter was a parish charge in 1777."

SEVENTH GENERATION

7. KENELM WINSLOW (The Immigrant)

Born April 29, 1599 in Droitwich, Worcestershire, England.
Died Sept. 13, 1672 in Salem, Mass. Buried there.
MARRIED June 1634 to Eleanor Adams, widow of John Adams, of Plymouth.
HIS OCCUPATION: Joiner, planter, and engaged in shipping business.
She was born 1598.
She was buried Dec. 5, 1681 in Marshfield, Mass., where they resided.
Kenelm came to Plymouth about 1629, probably with his brother, Josiah.
Kenelm was the second brother of Gov. Edward Winslow, who came over in the Mayflower.
FOUR CHILDREN of Kenelm and Eleanor (Adams) Winslow:

(1.) KENELM WINSLOW

Born about 1635 in Plymouth, Mass.
Died Nov. 11, 1715 in Harwich, Mass. (now Brewster) and which originally was Yarmouth.
MARRIED Sept. 23, 1667, Mercy Worden, daughter of Peter and Mercy Worden of Yarmouth, Mass.
In 1678, he was styled "Col." Winslow.
They resided in West Brewster, Satucket, or Winslow Mills.
She was born about 1641. Died Sept. 22, 1688.

SEVEN CHILDREN of Kenelm and Mercy (Worden) Winslow:

(1.) KENELM WINSLOW
(2.) JOSIAH WINSLOW
(3.) THOMAS WINSLOW
(4.) SAMUEL WINSLOW
(5.) MERCY WINSLOW
(6.) NATHANIEL WINSLOW
(7.) EDWARD WINSLOW

(For their records, see Page 171).

MARRIED SECOND, Damaris. She was living March 27, 1729.

FOUR CHILDREN of Kenelm and Damarius Winslow:

(1.) DAMARIS WINSLOW
(2.) ELIZABETH WINSLOW
(3.) ELEANOR WINSLOW
(4.) JOHN WINSLOW

(For their records, see Page 174).

(2.) ELEANOR, OR ELLEN WINSLOW

Born 1637.

Died Aug. 27, 1676 (about).

MARRIED Dec. 29, 1656 to Samuel Baker, of Marshfield, Mass.

EIGHT CHILDREN of Eleanor (Winslow) and Samuel Baker:

(1.) KENELM BAKER
Born March 23, 1657.

Born May 19, 1663.

(5.) ELEANOR BAKER
Born 1665.

(6.) Mary Baker
Born May 9, 1667.

Two others. Born 1669 and 1671.

(3.) Capt. Nathaniel Winslow
Born about 1639 in Marshfield, Mass.
Died Dec. 1, 1719.
He inherited the homestead at Marshfield and was probably a farmer. Was captain of militia as early as 1698.
Married August 3, 1664 to Faith Miller.
She was born about 1645 in Yarmouth, Mass., daughter of Rev. John and Lydia Miller.
She died Nov. 9, 1729.
Eight children of Nathaniel and Faith (Miller) Winslow:

(1.) Faith Winslow
Born June 19, 1665.

(2.) Nathaniel Winslow
Born July 29, 1667.
Married Lydia Snow.
Married second, Deborah (Barstow) Bryant.

(3.) James Winslow

1. EDWARD WINSLOW

Leader of the Pilgrims to America and Governor of the Plymouth Colony.

Born Oct. 18, 1595 in Droitwich, Eng. Died May 8, 1655.

MARRIED May 16, 1618, Elizabeth Barker, of Chetsum, England, in Leyden, Holland, where they resided until time of embarkation in the "Mayflower" for America. Some ten years before, Elizabeth was among a group of refugees who left Lincolnshire, Eng., seeking refuge in Holland from the religious tyranny to which they were subjected. After residing a year or two in Amsterdam, or wandering in Holland, they found a temporary home together at Leyden, five miles from the coast. Edward, then a youth of twenty-two, an English traveler on the Continent, accidentally met Elizabeth Barker in the streets of Leyden. Credit is given to Rev. John Robinson, who married them, for Edward's conversion, and he readily joined in the movement for the removal of the Leyden Church to the New World. Holland offered them a place in their infant "Niew Niederland" would they but be true to the Dutch Republic. But they were resolved against this, for "English they were and English they would remain." Just at this time messengers returned from England bringing news that the king, while granting them no chartered rights, would promise graciously to wink at their non conformity . . . till it pleased him to open his eyes upon them.

Passage of the Pilgrims from Leyden to New England.

The Pilgrims left Leyden-Delft Haven, Holland, in the "Speedwell", July 1620, for Southampton, where they found the "Mayflower" had arrived from London.

The two vessels sailed from Southampton on August 5. They had not gone far before the "Speedwell" proved so leaky that they were forced to return and refit.

On August 21, they sailed again and proceeded about one hundred leagues, when they were obliged to return again, and to leave as unfit for service, the "Speedwell."

Leaving a part of the company, the remainder went on board the "Mayflower".

On the sixth day of September, they sailed from Plymouth, sighting land near Cape Cod, November 9 and anchored, November 11, 1620 (old style).

A dreary winter followed the landing and great hardships were endured.

Elizabeth (Barker) Winslow died the following spring, March 24, 1621.

Edward Winslow married second, May 12, 1621 Susanna (Fuller) White who died Oct. 1, 1680, widow of William White and mother of Peregrine, the first English child born in New England. This was the first marriage solemnized in the new colony.

DESCENDANTS OF THOMAS HATCH AND GRACE HATCH OF COUNTY CORNWALL, ENGLAND (1603). ANCESTORS OF MERCELIA PRUDENCE HATCH. WHO MARRIED DR. LAWSON ARMSTRONG WINSLOW.

NOTE: There was a JEFFRY HATCH who lived in England in the time of Edward III. (1327-1377.)

Also a CHRISTOPHER HATCH who lived in Bustistock (?) County Cornwall and who had his Coat of Arms confirmed in 1620, at a Herald's visitation of that date.

It is thought that these may have been ancestors of the Hatch Family of America, though it has not been possible to trace the connection.

Records of Thomas and Jonathan Hatch were obtained from "Records of Barnstable, Mass.", in Historical Rooms, Hartford, Connecticut.

Records of Jethro and Timothy Hatch in the Revolution are as Shown by records in the Adjutant General's Office, Hartford, Connecticut, also in Congressional Library, Washington, D. C.

Other information was obtained from work compiled by Edwin T. Hatch of Hudson, N. Y., who descends from Moses, third son of Jonathan, and from many other family members.

FIRST GENERATION

He was the ancestor of the family in this country, coming over from England in the ship "Mary and John," 300 tons, Captain

Squeb, master, to Dorchester, Mass. in 1630. (The above data has not been proven, but is thought to be approximately correct).
Settled in Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1634 and was made a freemen of that Colony May 14, 1634.
He was one of the nine who proposed Jan. 7, 1638 (O.S.) to take their freedom at Yarmouth. March fifth following, his name was entered on record of those proposed to become freeman at the next court.
In 1639 he moved to Barnstable, Mass., where he died in 1661.
Thomas was not a man of wealth and upon his death, left eight acres of land, called Westfield.

Settled in Yarmouth with father in 1639. (One account states in 1639 they removed from Dorchester, Mass. to Barnstable, where Thomas died.)

After marriage, he moved to South Sea, where he purchased fifty acres of upland with a small parcel of marsh adjoining, at a place called "Sepnisset by the Sea." He also owned eight acres meadow at Oyster Island, half of which he sold. For many years he pickled and marketed many barrels of oysters, and the shells were burned in a kiln to make lime for building purposes.
In 1661 he sold his farm at Sepnisset, and moved to Suconecet, the Indian name of Falmouth. There is a copy of the original

Indian deed where Jonathan Hatch bought the town of Falmouth from the Indians in 1661. It consisted of eighty acres. His eighth son, born at Falmouth, was the first white child born there. All sons born before 1665.
